I like to call Scrivener for MAC an author's workbench in a box I use Scrivener for MAC OS X to:

- Gather, store and organize research
- Outline chapters, sections and multiple books in a non-fiction series
- Outline, plot, and create the four part story structure for my novels
- Write uninterrupted in Scrivener for Mac's full-screen writing focus mode
- Drag and drop documents, scenes, chapters, sections and even entire books to rearrange ideas and events in the binder (Outline section)
- I even share my Scrivener files with co-authors, editors, and reviewers in Dropbox
- And so many other indispensable features I can't list them all.. If I want a new chapter, I simply create a new folder Will It Ever Get BetterA new scene in a novel, I create a new document..
